Dear Teen, I’ve been going out with my girlfriend for six months now and we are getting on well. The problem is that when I say that I am busy or I’m going to play football or go round to a friend’s house without her, she doesn’t like it. She accuses me of not liking her. Last week she was unhappy that I wasn’t seeing her on Friday night. It was my best friend´s birthday and he wanted to mess about. My girlfriend was so upset that she made me lie to him and tell him I felt ill so I could see her instead. I shouldn’t have done it, I feel bad about lying to my friend. She wants me to do it again next week, instead of going to the cinema with my mates. I’m scared that she will split up with me if I say no. What should I do?

Dear Teen, I’m in love with my best friend´s boyfriend. We have known each other for a long time and have talked together a lot. He´s fun, good-looking, and really nice. I know he likes me too. He told me so. He says he will split up with my friend if I go out with him. The thing is that I know my best friend will never talk to me again if I do this. People tell me that friendship is for ever and boyfriends are temporary but I think about him all the time.

Dear Teen, my girlfriend is extremely beautiful. The problem is that a lot of boys ask her out. I know that she tells them she´s going out with me but I find it very annoying. She sort of flirts with a lot of other boys. Should I ask her to stop or is that asking too much? Do I have a right to ask that?

Dear Teen, there is a girl n my class who I like but she is not at all popular. When my friend asked me if I liked her, I said no. He keeps joking that I do. She´s very quiet but I like talking to her. I think if I went out with her, my friends would never stop laughing at me. They might also be a bit rude to her. They are all crazy extroverts and she is incredibly shy and people laugh at her because she doesn´t wear fashionable clothes. The worst thing is that a week ago, she was really close by and my friend said to me as a joke, “Do you fancy Annette?” I was embarrassed so I said, “No , of course not, do you think I am mad?” I think she heard me.

You are concerned about your child’s health. He/She has been ill often lately and you think there might be a problem with their immune system. You’re also worried that they’re gaining weight. You are determined to take all the necessary steps to improve your child’s health no matter what changes to their (and your) lifestyle are required.

Student

Your parents have recently started controlling what you eat: you’re not allowed to eat sweets or anything with sugar in it at all. And you love sweets. In fact, you can’t imagine even one day without chocolate and fizzy drinks. You just can’t understand why your parents have started giving you only vegetable and fruit snacks. And why have they reduced how much money you get for pocket money?!

Talk to your parent. Protest and convince them to let you have sweets and to give you more pocket money.
