Well, and here we go again, have those pencils and paper ready to jot down the details of Bonfire Night celebrations in your area!

And we start off with one at the Green Man Pub in Stanway that's on tonight. It starts at nine p.m. and there's no charge to attend, so get along there tonight and start the celebrations early.

And tomorrow night we have those traditional Fifth of November celebrations at St Mary's Hospital and the Castle Park. The one at St Mary's starts at seven-thirty and the gates open half an hour earlier at seven o'clock. Tickets are three fifty for adults and a pound for children and pensioners, and that includes a soft drink of your choice and a baked potato. Can't be bad!

And finally we have the Charity Firework Display in the Castle Park. This proved so popular last year that they have decided to have two displays this year. This first one will be at six o'clock for the kiddies and there will be another one later on for those who just can't get out to the first one. And that will be at nine thirty.

Tickets can be bought in advance and the price is three seventy-five for adults and one twenty-five for children, which includes a hot dog or hamburger.

And remember, all proceeds go to charity, so you can really enjoy yourself and help someone in need at the same time.

Now over to Bob Wilson to bring you up to date on the latest traffic news.
