READING COMPREHENSION

(page 1)

Read the story carefully. There are four tasks to do on the next page.

Lost!

Jamie Neale, 19, from north London, went for a day's walk in Australia's beautiful Blue Mountains. Nobody saw him again for 12 days. Everyone thought he was dead. Read this amazing story.

On 3 July 2009, Jamie left his youth hostel in Sydney to go for a day's walking. He didn't tell anyone where he was going. Jamie was wearing a dark blue, thin jacket and jeans, and was carrying a small rucksack with a basic map, a small bottle of water and two bread rolls. But he didn't take an emergency beacon, matches, a compass or his mobile phone.

1. _____

The Blue Mountains are a famous tourist attraction, and Jamie was enjoying his walk when he made a big mistake. He left the path and started to follow a wallaby track into the bush. When Jamie tried to get back to the path, he went deeper and deeper into the bush. When it got dark, Jamie knew he was in trouble. Back in town, nobody knew that Jamie was missing until four days later.

2. _____

Jamie kept calm and thought about how to survive. He stayed close to a river and he drank lots of water. He ate berries, seeds and nuts. July is winter in Australia, and it got cold at night. Jamie used bark from trees to make blankets.

3. _____

After four days, Jamie heard helicopters in the sky. He shouted and waved. But the helicopters didn't see him. Four hundred people joined the search, including Jamie's dad, Richard, who flew over from England. Jamie reached his lowest point when he couldn't hear the helicopters anymore. He knew they had given up. "I thought I would starve to death," he said.

4. _____

On the twelfth day came the incredible news. Two walkers had found Jamie in the bush. Jamie was very tired and hungry, and very pleased to see them! After an emotional meeting with his son, his father said, "Jamie is the only teenager in the world who goes on a ten-mile hike and leaves his mobile phone behind!"
