LISTENING COMPREHENSION
(please read twice)

I'm a bit worried about the future, but I don't think I would say that I am panicking about it – not yet, anyway! I'm worried about my appearance though, because I get spots sometimes. Years ago, I wouldn't have gone out if I had a big spot on my nose but now I feel happier with myself and feel that my personality counts for a lot of people.

Fran wants me to go on holiday with her but I would never do that because she never likes the places I choose when we go out to eat, and she never wants to do the same things as I do. I like to plan things my way, then I know it will be OK. She's got good taste, though, and I always take her advice if we go shopping together. She is the person who persuaded me to buy that wonderful cashmere sweater which I put in the washing machine and it was so small afterwards that I gave it to my sister for one of her dolls! I wouldn't have taken it back to the shop because it was my own fault that it shrunk. I still haven't got the courage to speak to Fran's amazing American cousin. He looks just like a movie star. I hope she introduces me soon. Can't wait! I'd really welcome a chance to start a new relationship. I was a real coward when I was going out with Phil. I just couldn't bring myself to end it. Fran says that I was selfish because I didn't want to upset myself so I upset Phil instead. At least she was honest with me. The trouble was, Phil was always paying me silly compliments and I found it really embarrassing. Oh well, I must stop wasting time. I've got masses of homework and I don't really understand what we have to do and I'm terrified to ask Mr. Horner because he'll think I'm stupid. I wish I could be as clever as Fran.

STUDENT

Yesterday afternoon you and some of your friends were playing football or another ball game outside your house, in the street. The game was a little noisy and the ball was not always under your control. No one of your neighbours was at home, so you thought. Suddenly, today there is a complaint. First, when your mom/dad confronts you, you fool around, pretending to be innocent but as the conversation carries on, you end up apologizing.

You start: I heard our neighbour has just left. What did he want?

TEACHER

You are a mum or a dad and you have just heard your neighbour's complaint about some damages done to their property – mud spots on the front door and on the car, devastated flower beds, a cracked post box... and a ball in his swimming pool. Ask your child some questions about yesterday afternoon's activities, for example, where the ball is ...
